Cameron Yoes Holding Breath In Lieu Of Victory Over Tigers

Parade, Pep Rally, Reception, Dance On Spotlight With Game

After taking the Georgetown Eagles 7-0 last Friday night, the Cameron Yoemen find themselves in first place of District 22-AA standings, but with two more hard games on their schedule.

The Yoemen need this victory Friday night because a defeat by Belton whould throw the Yoes back into a first place tie with either Georgetown or Rosebud, who play each other this weekend and both teams are tied for second place in the District with a 2 - 1 record. In the other battle, Taylor and Rockdale, who are smothered in the celler, meet at Rockdale

Belton, who has ended up in a tie for first place the last two years instead of first by itself is gunning for the Yoes this season as it was the Yoemens fault that the Bell County boys were knocked into a lower catagory. Belton engineered their spotless record through District play and remained so until they played Cameron. They were upset in 1952 by a few points while last year the Tigers were skinned thoroughly, 39-13 by the Yoemen.

The Tigers have 5 wins and 3 losses as a season record while their conference record is one won and two lost. The Yoemen's season record is split four all, with three of those victories in district play.

Prior to game activities the Yoe High School ex's will be arriving from all parts to take part in the annual Yoe High Homecoming. Due to the holiday on Thursday, Nov. 11, the student body is staging their parade and pep rally at 11 a. m. Friday instead of Thursday night. Floats entered by th four classes will interpete the Yoemen's cause, welcome the Ex's back and stir up team spirit for the eimportant game

The kickoff is set at 8 p. m. on the Yoe High field and immediately following the Ex's and their guests have been invited to the homemaking department where the Senior Class, assisted by Miss Patsy Skeen will entertain with a coffee.

A dance has been scheduled at the Knights of Columbus Hall following the coffee for the high school crowd, all Ex's and their guests. The open house dance will be chaproned by several local citizens, headed by Jim McKeown.

Coach Hugh Smith began his season with three returning starters from the 1953 squad and eight let-

Eggs Can Now Be Purchased For Two - Thirds Less By Consumers

J. D. Moore, County Agent-

Eggs at the present time are a good buy for consumers. Comparing the prewar period with recent years, a little over a third more eggs can be purchased today with an hour of labor income compared to prewar. In contrast, there was little change in the amount of beef and lamb that can be obtained with an hour of labor income.

According to USDA figures, the national 1954 production of all poultry products is record high. The prospective output of eggs by yearend is 6 per cent above 1953. According to USDA figures, Texas has only a 4 per cent increase in egg production. Since Texas has not increased egg production as much as states in the other regions there seems to be no cause for a high percentage reduction of layers on farms in Texas, in those areas where graded egg programs are operating. The graded egg programs afford an opportunity for egg producers to sell at higher prices than are available to most producers who have to sell eggs on a current receipt basis.

It therefore seems advisable for poultry men who have graded egg markets available to go forward with their flock replacements and maintain their normal egg production operations in 1955.

Production through mid-1955 is already "made" by the number of hens and pullets presently on farms. After mid-1955, and for a year thereafter, the volume of egg production will depend largely on the number of pullets saved from the replacement chickens to be raised in the first half of 1955.

The prospects for egg prices the next few months, and their history for the past 6 months, make it quite clear that farmers' normal reactions will be to raise fewer replacement chickens in 1955. This probably will cause many barnyard egg producers to drop their production. The producers selling on grade, which includes many commercial producers, should hold their normal production because sometime in the fall of 1955 egg prices probably will improve. The "in and outers" will probably substantially reduce the number of chickens raised for laying flock replacements in 1955. Eggs will be plentiful in the next 6 months, even more plentiful than they are now. Egg prices in March and April of 1955 will probably be lower than in the same months in 1954.

Aldermen Disagree On All Problems

Garbage, Water, Ledger Discussed And Disagreed On By Councilmen

A congenial prologue to the City Council meeting Tuesday evening proved to be deceiving after initial proceedings, when every issue presented led to a verbal slug-fest between councilmen.

After dissention on several issues the garbage problem was broached by councilman Gene Blake bringing arguments, various viewpoints and tempers into obvious display.

Robert Weems started the discussion with a statement he has repeatedly brought before the council, "Something has to be done about these tin cans".

Blake asserted that the council had tabled the garbage problem long enough and that he, for one, was ready to take some action.

After some talk on the community problem, Blake offered the motion that the ordinance committee draw up an ordinance by which each resident would be charged a monthly fee of 75 cents for bi-weekly garbage pick-up and a commercial rate of $2.50 be set for the business district with the charges to be billed monthly on the regular city water bill.

He ended the motion with the statement, "I may get run out of town, but at least it will be a clean town. " opionions. John Andres said that he would be very much against the ordinance if it were compulsory; Mayor O. B. Horstmann stated that he would like to see the ordinance passed but thought that different rates according to the number of monthly pick-ups could be charged. Milton Schiller went on record as being for the motion as it read and seconded Blakes proposal. Griffith stated he was against the motion since it did not provide for those who had no garbage.

In a roll call vote, called for by Andres, Blake, Schiller and Weems cast their ayes on the proposed ordinance with Andres and Griffith voting no.

After the voting Weems brought up the problem of the people in the city limits and on the immediate outskirts who do not have water connections but are now getting some semblance of tin-can pickups.

Councilmen agreed that after the ordinance was completed those people could make arrangements by contacting the city hall.

At the beginning of the meeting Weems notified councilmen that work had started on completing 10th street in front of the new Ben Milam Elementary school, with the city doing the work and the school paying for having it done. sible if unable to complete their end of the project and that they be given complete assistance by state.

He added that Hanover assured him that work on the field notes will begin just as soon as Austin "O. K.'s" the work.

Councilmen bandied the money angle and human nature on right-of-way worth around the table with the apparent solution to many problems of last year offered. It was brought out that the road could way from Kemp street to Travis swerve slightly in front of Dr. Huberts home and the Gospel Tabernacle, thus solving two problems, and that E. A. Perrin and owner of the Gulf Service Station in that vicinity have verbally approved the extra right of way.

Blake stated that he would like to be put on the committee in charge of seeing the involved people in getting the right-of-way.

Mayor Horstmann concluded the discussion with "It looks good -- it looks too good!"

Keeping the talk on the street side of the ledger Schiller brought up the matter of delivery trucks parking right at the intersection on West Third in front of the Post Office building. Councilmen discussed at length the necessity for telling delivery truck drivers to park their vehicles near the center of the block to allow clear vision to other drivers along that street. They also pointed out that anyone driving behind the trucks didn't know whether the truck was parked or waiting for on-coming traffic. City policemean Marshall Terry was authorized to tell drivers to park at least two cars back from the intersection.

Next up for dissention was the water problem of Cameron in the future. Blake said, "It looks like to me that we are sleeping on our rights as far as water is concerned." He pointed out that Bob Poage stated that there are 45,000 acre at $25 per acre foot storage with feet in Beltons Reservoir for sale municipalities having top priority for purchase.

He said that if Cameron council-

Yoemen Blank Georgetown 7 - 0

Team in District 22-AA Circuits Cameron Remains Only Undefeated

After two quarters of see-saw football, the Cameron Yoemen turned a Georgetown fumble into a 69 yard touchdown drive with Joe Lee Heitman on a double reverse play dashing off the remaining 12 yards on a fourth down for the score.

The score climaxed the drive that netted four first downs.

George Absnaider set his foot into this one for the extra point and ended the scoring for the night.

The touchdown drive began on the Yoe 39 yard line when Leon Beale covered a Georgetown fumble. Buddy Thompson, Jimmy Rettig and Leon Beale carried the ball to the 12 where the Yoes came up on a fourth down and the Eagles holding. But Joe Heitman was sent in and after a double reverse play, cut loose and hit paydirt.

Georgetown won the toss and took the kickoff with the Eagles immediately marching down to the Yoe 29 yard line, however, Steve Polzer intercepted an Eagle pass and rubbed out the threat for the Eagles. The Yoemen were not able to move during the first quarter with both teams fighting it out in mid-field.

Georgetown threaten to score in the second quarter but a tight line forced the Eagles to give up the ball after they moved to the Yoe 6 yard line.

The Yoemen came back moments later after Beale intercepted an Eagle pass. They moved swiftly down to the Georgetown 30 yard line, but this time the Eagles held and took over on downs.

Late in the third quarter Beale recovered the Georgetown fumble on the Yoemen 39 yard line and this is where the Yoemen began their touchdown drive.

Georgetown was shaken up a bit and fumbled the kickoff with the Yoemen recovering it and taking over again, this time on the Eagle 25 yard line.

George Childress, representative for many well known Insurance firms bought the agency and will continue handling accounts for Hartford Fire, American General and Hartford Livestock under the same arrangements as formerly provided by the Lesovsky agency.

The Hartford Comapny is one of the oldest in the United States, having been formed in 1794. One of the interesting aspects of the transaction was the presentation by Mrs. Frank Lesovsky and her daughter, Miss Tony Lesovsky, of an antique plaque of the Hartford Company complete with symbol to the George Childress agency.

It was estimated that the plaque must be at least 100 years old, since it was purchased in an anti mily of Ben Arnold, and Mr. and que shop by Mr. Lesovsky about 50 years ago. Childress said that it is one of the few plaques made in this period still in use and is very valuable.

"We want to continue serving the Insurance customers of the Lesovsky" Mr. Childress staed, "and would like to have any of them that wish to do so visit us in our offices and talk to us about their future insurance needs."

Miss Tony Lesovsky has been operating the local agency started by her father since his death in 1950. She said that she will continue her livestock and farming interests in the future.

John Sefcik Prepares Complete Soil And Water Conservation Plan On Farm

Central Texas Soil Conservation District News, Edwin Fischer, Supervisor.

John Sefcik, Route 1, Cameron, has recently prepared a complete soil and water conservation plan for his 255 acre farm.

During the last several years, Mr. Sefcik has seen an increasing need for more conservation practices. He asked the aid of local Soil Conservation Service technicans in developing a systematic plan for applying the needed practices.

Terraces were constructed on 1 field where a permanent pasture could be used for terrace outlets. On other fields, waterways were planned. As soon as a good cover of grass can be established, these fields will be terraced.

To aid the terraces in controlling erosion and at the same time increase the water infiltration rate and water hilding capacity of the soil, Mr. Sefcik planned a systamatic crop rotation. This rotation includes a deep rooted legume one year in three. In additiop to this, a cover crop of Austrian Winter Peas is to preceed every cotton crop. The deep rooted legume, such as Hubam clover, will penetrat the hard pan and allow more water to soak into the soil. Austrian Winter Peas will aid in keeping the top soil in condition to take in and hold more water for plant use.

Mr. Sefcik has a 35 acre field which is badly eroded and needs terraces if it is to be used for cropland. Since the field now has a fair stand of native grasses, he plans to establish a permanent pasture by overseeding an adapted legume and more grass.

There are three permanent pasturs on the farm. Two of these do not have adequate water supplies, therefore one pasture is overgrazed enough to utilize the grass. New ponds are planned so that grazing can be better distribued in all 3 pastures.

A conservation plan, like this one of Mr. Sefcik's. requires time and much work to put into effect. Mr. Sefcik does not intend to do all of it the first year, but he will use the plan in reaching his long range objective. That objective is to conserve the soil and increase the production of his farm.

The newest addition of the John Reyna Family of Cameron is a 6 pound, seven ounce baby girl born Oct. 20 and named Adelita.

Governor Proclaims This Week As Beef Week In Texas

Independence has always been a favorite word in Texas. It is virtually the cornerstone of our history, our attitudes, our heritage and our pride.

The Texas cattleman has long been a symbol of independence and self-reliance. The history of Texas is the history of the cowboy. The state's true greatness began when the pioneer cowmen licked drouth, depredation and disease to build Texas grazing herds beyond local needs and made the great trail drives to northern markets

Today Texas is still the beef capital of America. With a cattle population of 8,587,000 this year, it leads the nation.

Texas cowmen feel that Texas should lead in beef consumption, too, as well as in beef production. That is their answer to price problems. Not price supports, but "Eat More Beef!" is their watchword. The Governor has proclaimed this as Beef Week in Texas, and the Texas Beef Council urges us to eat beef every day.

It's a good idea, from every stand-point, and a good way to salute the self-reliant cattle industry of Texas.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR:

Editor, Cameron Herald: I have not lived in Cameron for 39 years so it is very seldom that I see any ones name in your paper that I know or can recall, but I was very happy to see the picture of the old school which you write will soon be torn down. I am sorry you only had a partial view of it, as it brings back many memories of my boyhood days.

In September 1899 or 98 I started to school there under the guidance of Miss Ada Henderson. She also taught my mother, my sister and my sisters children and my brother Jesse. Three generations in one family.

The first grade was on the right which you did not show in the picture Some other teachers I remember were Miss Anna Chandler, the Durrough Sisters, Miss Edna Mattie and Miss Rodiia.

Many boys and girls I recall there, some scattered to the four winds, some passed on and a few must still be around. There were the Mangrum boys, the Sharpes, Wyatt Wolf, Penn Wolf and Digger Rogers. I think these last two mentioned were every Cameron boys Hero. I could go on and name hundreds of those I often think of, so can't you go on now and then bringing something of the past history or pictures or both.

I am sure you have many readers scattered in many states who would enjoy having something like this to read or look at.

A few years ago I received some of the history of Willis Kemp of Houston, a brother of the late Jeff D. Kemp. I read it over often.

Milam County and Cameron both had many people in the early days whose struggles and trials would make interesting reading especially to those who have reached the point in life where memories ar treasurered more than gold.

Yours truly,

Leroy Wilkerson

LITTLE RIVER PHILOSOPHER COMES OUT WITH IMPROVED SCOREBOARD TO TAKE GUESS-WORK OUT OF FOOTBALL

(Editor's note: The Little River Philosopher on his Johnson grass farm on Little River discusses football this week, which we doubt he has any business doing.

Dear editar:

I know as much about football as I do Constitutional law or the life cycle of the boll weevil, but I've been noticing lately that more and more fans are coming away from football games each week unsatisfied with the results.

At any given game, you know beforehand half the fans are gonna come away unhappy over the outcome, and I never have figured out how an enterprise with such odds against it could survive. n the otherhand most winters I've never figured out how my cows could survive on the feed they've got, but somehow they make it.

A year or so ago I figured out a plan where both teams could win, everybody could come away from a game feelin elated and the coachin profession wouldn't be any more hazardous than farmin, but I never got anywhere with it.

I have been thinkin about football some more though -- why shouldn't a farmer advise on football, everybody else advises farmers on farmin -- and was interested in readin about a situation ago. It seems the stadium time clock stopped during the middle of the game and the fans were almost helpless. Didn't know what down it was half the time, couldn't tell how many yards to go for a first down, and had a hard time finding out when the game was over.

This is a serious situation, but it can be overcome, and the angle I was thinking about is this: one thing football needs is more elaborate score boards. As it is now, the fans keep one eye on the field and the other on the score board, and it keeps their heads turnin like it was a tennis game, while at the same time they keep an ear cocked to hear the public announcer's voice tell who carried the ball, who made the tackle, what the penalty was for, where the ball is now resting, etc., but under the plan I've worked out it wouldn't be necessary to watch the ball players at all. All you'd have to do is listen to the stadium roars and keep your eyes glued on the score board. In addition to showing how many yards was just gained, what down it is, how many minutes left to play, etc., the scoreboard easily could be enlarged to show little moving electrical figures representing all the players on both sides, manipulated by experts in the press box, with each play accurately represented on the board, which would be in the form of a football field with yardage stripes across it, etc.

The electrical sign business is at such an advanced stage that showing players running up and down on a scoreboard shouldn't be any trick at all to achieve.

If you think this idea has any merit, I offer it to you free.

By the way, I have another idea worked out to allow fans from both sides to come away from every game a lot more satisfied than they are now, and I'll write you about it next week in case you're interested. May do it anyway.

Yours faithfully,
J. A.

Granite Memorial Dedicated In Killeen Nov. 11

The ceremony will be at 11 o'clock the morning of Veterans Day at the marker site in Conder Park. Master of ceremonies will be Judge Kirk Evetts of Belton. Music will be by the Killeen High School Band.

Days activities will be a breakfast at the American Legion home at 7:30 o'clock , November 11 to which all veterans are invited, according to Fourth Divison Commander Jack Levy of Killeen.

Senator Kelley, because of his long tenure on both the state and national foreign relations commissions, is regarded an outstanding authority upon the subject.

men could look into the future they would probably realize how wise it would be to buy storage space now in the reservoir for the future needs of the city. Blake added that if an industry should plan to settle in Cameron the present water supply would be far from sufficient and might put future Cameronites in a bad position if all the Belton storage space had been sold.

Andres and Mayor Horstmann disagreed, pointing out that two other dams are being planned in this area which could supply Cameron needs in the future. They added that top consumption by the city to date has been one and one-half million gallons per month and that is supplied free by a water grant made many years ago.

Blake countered with the remark that this may be ture, but that he is expecting the city to grow and if it does more water will be needed and that the grant be needed and that the grant they were talking about guarantees Cameron only the actual seasonal flow of the river and if the river dried up as many rivers have where would Cameron get their water for the price they can now buy storage space in Belton.

It was decided that the water committee will attend a water meeting in Temple when the date is set and additional information related before reaching a conclusion on what the city should do.

Blake, apparently in a pugilistic mood, wondered aloud if anyone on the city council knew the actual assets and liabilities of the city.

Neomi Needham City Secretary, stated that the books were open to the public at all times.

Schiller asked why the $3,800 returned to the state highway department was not added on the list of monies prepared by the finance committee chairman and was told that only the usable monies were on this report and that highway improvement since that is the $3,800 had to be allocated to what the bond called for.

Blake continued his assertion that the city should have a ledger kept current of city assets and liabilities, so that everyone wouldn't work in the dark all year as to the actual worth of the city and property owned by the city.

One councilman said that such ledgers were made for private businesses not city operations and Blake contended that it is only good business for the city to know where it stands financially.

No conclusions were drawn.

One of the other important issues up before the council was the matter of an extra city patrolman. It was decided that a notice will be placed in the newspaper that applications will be taken for the job and the police committee will draw up a qualification sheet and application blanks. The new policeman, with staggered hours, will go to work about the first of December according to councilmen.

National Cotton Crop Ahead Of Earlier Estimate

WASHINGTON--A bigger 1954 Texas cotton crop than had been anticipated was forecast Monday by the Agriculture Department.

The estimate was 3,850,000 bales, up 275,000 bales from the ctober forecast but still below the 1953 crop of 4,350,000 bales.

The national estimate was 13,206,000 blaes -- up 695,000 blaes from the ctober forecast.

Unusually favorable weather in most areas the main factor in the big increase in the indicated crop, the department said.

Prospective production in Arkansas was up 95,000 bales; in Louisiana, up 25,000; in klahoma up 35,000; in New Mexico, up 20,000.

The department estimated that Texas would have a yield of 242 pounds an acre.

Ginnings in Texas up to Nov. 1 totaled 2,519,821 bales -- compared to 2,415,707 last year.

This year's crop was grown under rigid federal planting and marketing controls designed to prevent an increase in large reserves accumulatd from past big crops. A crop of about $12,000,000 bales had been sought.

The department also estimated that cotton production will average 329 pounds for each harvested acre, compared with 324.2 pounds last year and 272.2 pounds for the 10-year average.

In an accompanying report, the Census Bureau said 9,670,474 running bales of 1954-crop cotton had been ginned prior to Nov. 1 compared with 10,768,648 ginned to the same date last year and 10,807,706 two years ago.

Calogen, Great Aid To Cattlemen

Cattle raisers in this day and age have been looking for a feed that would supply all their needs, in a new ingredient discovered by Swift and Company scientists, called Calogen, they now can do just that ... ..supply two and one half times as much energy as similar amounts of corn, wheat, oats or barley by feeding Calogen.

Joe Humplik, local Farm and Ranch Store dealer, is among the first in this area to have a supply of feeds containing Calogen for local farmers and cattlemen.

Due to the local drouth cattlemen have necessarily been feeding their cattle less and losing money and cattle as a result. This new feed with its extra ingredient fits right in with a reduced feeding plan, since less feed is needed for body maintnance of each animal when Calogen is added.

Tom Stone, Southern Division Supervisor of Swift and Company, For any additional information Humplik at the loca Farm and Ranch Store has invited all cattlestated today that Swift's Cattle Feeds with Calogen open the way for faster gains at lower cost.

Advantages and Disadvantages of Local Home Rule

In pointing out the aspects of Home Rule the Herald will at all times keep the people of Cameron in mind and print both sides of the picture It is the belief of the Herald that if the people are shown both sides of the picture they will choose the side with the greatest number of assets and to the best advantage to the city and its people.

In an open invitation to the members of the City Council the Herald representatives pointed out that all councilmens articles and viewpoints on the coming election for Home Rule will be appreciated. Their replys to the paper will be printed verbatum.

Printed below is a general discussion on Home Rule by Stuart A. MacCorkle, director of the Institute of Public Affairs at the University of Texas.

Many advocates of municipal home rule speak of the right of cities to govern themselves. It does not seem to be a question of the right of the state to govern cities, nor is it a question of the right of cities to govern themselves. The Question is whether constitutional home rule provides a more satisfactory relationship between the cities and the state. In determining what constitutes a satisfactory relationship, the welfare of both the state and the cities must be considered. It is difficult to justify home rule if it leads to improvement in municipal conditions at the expense of the welfare of the state. Advocates of home rule believe -- and, it seems, justifiably so, -- that it will be of advantage to the cities and also to the welfare of the state as a whole

What objections are made to municipal home rule? There are those who point to cases of corruption and municipal extravagance. They believe that home rule will give greater opportunities to political machines and special interests and that they will take advantage of the opportunities offered for plundering the city. Opponents of home rule feel that the result will be greater corruption and the complete breakdown of local govern-themselves.

Advocates of home rule believe that the added powers and responsibilities given the cities will lead to the development of an enlightened and watchful electorate. Rather than a disadvantage, its advocates see a positive advantage in placing this added burden and responsibitlity on the municipal electorate. In advocating municipal home rule, Professor Goodnow stated as early as 1895 that the granting of a greater degree of local autonomy would "cause all municipal citizens to feel a healthy sense of responsibility for the evils from which they suffer, as well as an assured conviction that they have it in their power to work a sensible improvement in their condition."

Another weakness of municipal home rule, as has been pointed out before, is the difficulty of dividing powers between the state and city. The scope of the power granted under a general constitutional grant of authority to control "municipal affairs" and matters of "municipal concern" or to exercise "powers of local self-government" is uncertain until defined by the courts. This leads to costly litigation and delay. To attempt a detailed enumeration of matters that should be left to cities would not be a satisfactory method of meeting this problem

Another objection that is made to home rule is that ti will constitute each city an imperium in imperio, thus losing sight of the fact that as well as an organization for the the city is an agent of the state satisfaction of local needs. Advocates of homerule do not propose to set up an independent govern- dcisions and to carry out these decisions through instrumentalities and agencies of their own choosing only insofar as purely local affairs are concerened. In matters which concern the entire state, the city is not to be free from state control or permitted to do as it pleases. The argument that home rule sets up an imperium in imperio and that cities will no longer be effective agents of the state is founded on a misunderstanding of constitutional home rule. The attitude of advocates of home rule on this question has been stated as follows:

> Home rule for cities is based upon the fundamental proposition that the local community, in purely local matters, is best able to determine its own needs, and to devise ways and means whereby those needs shall be met; on the other hand, matters which effect the general welfare of the state the home rule recognizes that in lgislature should be supreme. It is not the purpose of municipal home rule movements to impair the legitimate and effective use of the city as a state agent in matters which affect the commonwealth as a whole...

Home rule offers the most satisfactory relationship between city and state. It is a logical outcome of the prohibition on special legislation The attempt to legislate for all cities by a general law was unsatisfactory. Many abuses developed in the classification of cities to conform to constitutional prohibitions on special legislation and yet avoid treating by a general law all cities of the state in the same manner. In a discussion of home rule we should not lose sight of our all too often unhappy experiences under other methods of city-state relationship.

Most Successful Homemaker of 1954 To Be Named By Judges November 18

In some modest kitchen, somewhere in America, a typical homemaker today goes about her routine tasks, unaware that on Nov.18 in Chicago she will be proclaimed "Most Successful Homemaker of 1954."

A panel of five distinguished judges headed by Ivy Baker Priest, Treasurer of the U. S., will select the winner of the title, from nominations submitted through the community newspapers of America These are the smaller weekly newspapers serving the rural communities and the neighborhoods of the metropolitan areas.

Names of women eligible for the honor, which carries with its a $2,500 cash award, have been submitted to their local community papers by husbands, ministers and parish priests, Girl and Boy Scout troops, sons and daughters, and by community clubs and groups. The entries will be judged on these qualities:

In what way has she been a pillar of spiritual and moral strength in her home?

How well does she, regardless of family income, maintain her personal and family appearance?

To what extent has she taken part in civic and church affairs?

How else has she demonstrated her abilities in creating an appealing home?

The panel of judges will meet in Chicago Nov. 10 to select individual state winners. From these will be presented with an engraved silver tray, and will be honored in her local communty.

The finalist will be brought to Chicago, where she will be presented with her cash award at a luncheon in the Mayfair room of the Sheraton-Blackstone. In attendance will be a selected group of guests' representing civic, social industrial organizations which recognize the role of the homemaker in the American way of life.

The cash award has been donated by Edward H. Kerber, Chicago business man, in memory of his mother, the late Mary Kerber. He will present the prize, as well as a plaque.

Serving with Mrs. Priest on the judges' panel will be Miss Alice C. Sanderson, homemaking adviser of the National Staff of the Girl Scouts of America; Mrs. Raymond T. Sayre, past president of the American Farm Bureau Federation and member of President Eisenhower's advisory board on agriculture; Mrs. Eugenia Van-Landingham, president of the National Home Demonstration Agents association; and Judge P. B. Gilliam, of Denver, president of the National Council of Juvenile Court Judges.

Chester K. Hayes, director of Associated Release Service, Chicago, is chairman of the Successful Homemaking Award Committee, which is handling the details of the competition on behalf of the community newspapers.

YOEMEN BLAN K —

The Yoemen again penatrated deep into Eagle territory but the Eagles held on their own 16 yard line.

The last play of the game saw Georgetown in charge of the ball as they desperatly tried to score, but time ran out and the Yoemen remained undefeated in District 22-AA play, with 7-0 victory. This was Georgetown's first district defeat.

The Yoemen dominated the game but Georgetown held a slight advance over the Yoes in the first half. Buddy Thompson was the outstanding ground gainer for the Yoe Friday night with Jimmy Rettig right behind him. Rettig received a leg injury in the final moments of play and taken from the game.

Outstanding linemen for the night for Cameron were Benny Massengale, Steve Polzer and Albert Mondrik.

YOEMEN —

termen. Both the Yoemen and Tigers operate off the standard T formation.

Belton has won over Gatesville, Lampases, Marlin, McGregor and Taylor while losing to Killeen, Rose bud and Georgetown. The Yoemen have their victories over University High of Waco, Taylor, Rockdale and Georgetown while losing to Lampases, Caldwell, Killeen and LaVega. All four of the teams who slung the Yoes for a lost are rated as top teams in Central Texas with Killeen and LaVega still listed among the few Class AA teams who are undefeated in the state.

The crucial battle Friday night is one of the most important games of the season for the Yoemen Belton has a fine running team that has been hitting hard luck recenlty, but the Tigers came back with smooth victory over the Taylor Ducks last Friday night. More so are the Belton boys earger to upset the Yoemen's record and homecoming activities as the Yoemen have spoiled Beltons during the past few years.

Clifford Angell and Buddy Thompson will captain the team, that will be "in the pink" for the encounter. "The team is in top shape and came out of the Georgetown game with only a few bruises, but they collect a few bruises after each game", Coach Leo Jackson said. "The boys will have a very hard game on their hands Friday, which they will have to win in order to stay in the running for the district crown."

This is the third year that the Yoemen have come out front in the District and both times been nosed out in the final game of the year. This year the Cameron Yoemen are holding their breath in lieu of a win Friday night. The district is so well matched this year that no team can say it has the district crowd nailed down thus far. The race is still wide open with the Yoemen just having a one game lead on everybody else.

The propable starting lineup for Cameron will most probably remain the same.

Much Soil Still Being Lost Due To Method of Plowing CTSCD Stresses By: CTSCD Board of Supervisors

"Our country is hilly and we have been in the habit of ploughing in straight rows whether up and down hill, in oblique lines, or however they lead; and our soil was all running into the rivers. We now plough horizontally, following the curvatures of the hills and hollows, on the dead level, however crooked the lines may be. Every furrow thus acts as a reservoir to receive and retain the waters, all or which go to the benefit of the growing plant, instead of running off into the streams. In a farm horizontally and deeply ploughed, scarcely an ounce of soil is now carried off from it."

The above quotation was written by Thomas Jefferson in a letter to a friend in 1813. Our habit of plowing has changed very little since 1813. Many of our hillsides are still cultivated in straight rows and as in the days of Thomas Jefferson, our soil and water are running into the rivers.

Terraces with contour cultivation will slow the rate of water runoff and give the water more time to soak into the ground. The slower rate of run-off also reduce the amount of erosion that takes place but it does not stop all erosion.

To prevent erosion on hilly farm land, terraces and contour cultivation plus other conservation practices are necessary. In many cases, the farmland has a layer of hard soil (plow pan) that prevents water from soaking into the ground. This plow pan is caused by continuous cultivation, cultivating when the ground is wet, and the loss of organic matter. There are several things that we can do to prevent or break this plow pan

It can be prevented by cultivating as few times as possible to control vegetation and then plowing only when the moisture conditions are right. Organic matter should be added to the soil by properly using the crop residues. If the plow pan is already present, we can break and destroy it by continuous use of deep rooted plants and close growing crops for two or more years, depending upon its seriousness. Again we should add as much organic matter as possible to he soil. In some cases,

Yoebees Dropped By Little Eagles 7-6 Thursday

Although losing by one point, 7-6, the Yoe High Yoebees outplayed and outmanned the Baby Eagles from Georgetown Thursday in the local stadium.

The Cameron lads had one scoring opportunity rubbed out when they fumbled the ball on the 1½ yard line with the little Eagles recovering.

Cameron's only touchdown yards were gained by Donovan Poppam, Ray Green and J. C. Wheeler and Guy Dillon, fullback, who plunged over for the T. D.

The whole Cameron line took good measures of the Eagles and outstanding blockers were Hillman, Moseley, McVay, and Smalley.

This was the second conference defeat for the Yoebees, having previously been beaten by Taylor, 32-13. Last week they marched to a 19-13 victory over Rockdale.

The Yoebees, coached by V. A. Adams, have two conference game left, against Belton and Rosebud, both out of town.
